WAGNER'S TWO THOUSAND VICTIMS

one Sued Without Cause Compr

FREDERICK, FREDERICK Co. MD., geptember 17.—Yesterday about 2,000 of the suits instituted by Dr. Harrison Wagner, the professional littgant, against citizens of this county, were settled, the defendants being compelled to pay various sums, ranging from $50 to $75 in each case. The opperations of Wagner are without a paralled in the United States. About two years ago he was generally considered to be harmlessly insane. His actions were calculated to confirm this theory, and his eccentricities were regarded with indifference by everyone who knew him. In the fall of 1879 Wagner caused much amusement by going before FREDERICK, FREDERICK Co. MD., his eccentricities were regarded with indifference by everyone who knew him. In the fall of 1879 Wagner caused much amusement by going before an obscure country magistrate and entering several hundred suits against leading citizens, chosen at random in all parts of the county, who had never seen or had any dealing with him. The amount of damages sued for in each case was between $90 and $100, the limit for which suits can be brought before magistrates in this State. No attention was paid to the supposed lunatic's suits, and the cases were soon fogotten, but were several were soon fogotten, but were several times called to memory by notices of hundreds of other suits being brought rials at his dictation, or in obedience to by Wagner, who frequently entered as high as 100 claims against one person.
Early in 1880 Wagner disappeared from public notice, but in the fail of high as 100 claims against one person.
Early in 1880 Wagner disappeared from public notice, but in the fall of that year the entire community was thrown in a furor of excitement when it was learned that Wagner had commenced proceedings to enforce judgments in 1,800 of suits It was then learned for the first time that the persons sued, having failed to appear before the magistrate to answer, judgments had been entered in each case for the amount named in the complaint. Wagner made no effort to collect the judgments until a year had expired, which by law the power of appeal had been lapsed. In Novemencer last, therefore, he was possessed of 1,800 judgments, averaging $75 each against about 300 county residents and corporations. Each judgment was endorsed, "By default" "No appeal taken," and of course they amounted to a lien on any property owned by the defendants.

During Wagner's absence several persons against whom he had obtained judgments died, and his first move was to file the judgments in the Orphans' Court as claims against the estate. Martin Shank, one of his victims, had died and left an estate valued at $8,500 to his wife and three small childred. Wagner filed judgments and splication for an arrest of judgment against the estate amounting of $6,200 and the Orphans' Court was compelled to postpone the hearing of the claims several times in order to avoid the necessity of admitting their validity. At length several citizens employed counsel for Mrs. Shank, who filed an application for an arrest of judgment on the ground of fraud. The same policy was pursued by all the other victims, and since that time the cases have been dragging along in the courts, the indications pointing to was provided to postpone the further failure to the courts, the indications pointing to large the provided to postpone the further failure to the courts, the indications pointing to large the provided the provided the necessity of admitting their validity. At length several citizens employed course, the further failure to the cou ruled that the failure of the victims to contest the suits was in law a virtual acknowledgement of the justice of the claims, which the further failure to take an appeal from the magistrate within the period prescribed by the law placed them beyond remedy.

After he had begun to enforce the judgments Wagner found the county too hot to hold him, and went to New York city, where he now is. The proceedings against his victims have been carried on by counsel here, and the settlement made in nearly all the cases yesterday, it is thought, will net him nearly $10,000. He does not pretend that he ever had any legal claim for damages in any of the cases, yet he has succeeded in obtaining considerable portions of the actates of several decease. portions of the estates of several deceased residents of the county, be side

The reason why women are everywhere using and recommending Parker's Ginger Tonic is, because they have learned by that best of guides -experience-that this excellent family medicine speedily overcomes despondency, periodical head-ache, indigestion, liver complaints, Washington D. C. Oct 7th, 1881.

The situation here is full of tnterest, and not without novelty. President Arthur will have to be jeredited with originality, if not accused of excentricity. Who ever heard of a President that would not live in the White House; and yet, there may be excellent reasons for preferring to make a home of the clegant and commoidious private residence of a friendly senator. The extra session of the Senate will meet in two days. The regular session, of Cougress will convene in six weeks. The American plague of office seekers is already beginning to swarm about the hotel lobbies. President Arthur is not ignorant of their means and methods. He knows that he will be less accessable to the office seeking pain or weakness in the back and kidneys, and other troubles peculiar to the sex.—Home Journal. See adv.

He knows that he will be less accessable to the office seeking rab ble, with its influential backing, at the private residence of Senator Jones, than if he were at the White House, a place that the cronic office seeker knows by heart, and invades at pleasure. But this is not the only departure of the President. After the extra session of the Senate, he proposes to live at Soldiers Home until mid-winter, when it is thought that repairs at the White House will be complete. The Soldiers home is three miles from the city, a most discouraging distance allowed:

Wm Pettis, judge of election.
Jongshan Weaver, Qo's mlary and Treasury examiner. The Soldiers home is three miles from the city, a most discouraging distance for the average office seeker, who is not able to hire a conveyance. The President has said that he is determined that the time and energy which he owes to the whole country shall not be wasted upon a horde of pestilent, brassy brats, many of them of the type of Gitteau, who hang aroud the lobbies of the White House, hungry for a place in which they hope to be paid from $900 to $1500, or at least three times as much as they would be competent to earn as employees in any commercial or professional pursuit. He has said that the Cabinet officers must attend to the official appointments of their respective departments. This will distribute the burden that has been in great part borne by the

has been in great part borne by the President to the sholders of seven dif-ferent men, and the fact that the Presdent is not in town, or not at home, to this class, will do much toward purging Washington of a malria from which the Capital has long suffered. President Arthur enters upon the executive office with more patronage to dispense than has been the lot of a new President in a great many years. He has one justice of the Supreme Court of the United States to appoint,
